

What's New?

In the age of information and instant access, it is very important to be able to quickly retrieve product data when and where you need it. To assist our customers in this endeavor, we have redesigned our website to enhance the user's experience. The renovated website incorporates many features:

- Easier to navigate – products are listed by categories in the same order and format as our catalog
- Advanced search – allows you to select products based on application, product family or specific product name
- Downloads – product data sheets, drawings, specifications, MSDS sheets and more can be downloaded directly from the website in Adobe Acrobat (.pdf), CAD (for drawings) and MSWord (for specifications)
- Publications – the latest e-catalog and e-binder can be viewed on-line or downloaded
- Portfolio – browse through the portfolio of projects where our products have been used
- E-Newsletter – sign up for our quarterly e-newsletter and locate archived newsletter articles

We also offer updated product literature including our 2010 catalog and product binder. Both publications are available in hard copy or electronic format. The new catalog allows you to quickly and easily locate the product data for the expansion joint that will meet your needs. The binder includes all of the information typically required for each product line (product data sheets, specifications, drawings, physical properties and MSDS sheets). Copies of these publications are available electronically on our website (www.eriametal.com/publications.html) or you can contact us to request a hard copy.
